Cox secures concession assets in infrastructure projects in Ecuador, representing an investment of over USD 700 million.

The initial portfolio comprises over 600 MW of solar PV generation capacity, coupled with more than 1,200 MWh of battery storage. The infrastructure package will be completed with the deployment of a new national transmission line.

These projects are La Ceiba I and II, Mátala, Tocachi, Malchinguí, and Ilapo I and II, located in the provinces of Loja, Pichincha, and Chimborazo.

This marks a first step that reflects the confidence placed in Cox's strategic vision, within the framework of a broader investment plan that includes the evaluation of additional initiatives related to water desalination and treatment.

Project implementation is expected to start in 2025, with operations coming online in two stages during 2026 and 2027.

These concessions represent a key milestone in diversifying the country's energy matrix, strengthening the reliability of the national power system, and advancing commitments to sustainability and energy efficiency. In addition, the projects will contribute to expanding energy access in strategic areas across Ecuador's national territory.
